EDITORIAL NOTE

The GEORGE WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY BULLETIN is published four times a year, under the editorial supervision of the Board of University Publications, appointed by the President's Council. It is the purpose of the Council to make the BULLETIN the organ of the educational and scientific activities of the University. The University Catalogue constitutes one number. Others are devoted to information of special interest to the Alumni and patrons of the University. Scientific numbers are published from time to time containing contributions from instructors and graduates, and information regarding books, monographs, and papers published by them under other auspices.

The present ALUMNI NUMBER contains an alphabetical list of living Alumni, a list of Alumni arranged by states and cities, and a list of Alumni whose addresses are unknown. The information given has been compiled from replies received from more than two thousand graduates. Any corrections or additions to the lists will be gratefully received by the Secretary of the General Alumni Association.

THE UNIVERSITY*

By the generosity and courtesy of that splendid body of patriotic women, the Daughters of the American Revolution, we are privileged to meet in this building, erected and dedicated as a memorial to the valor and the patriotism of the men and the days of the American Revolution. Patriotism is the synonym for heroism, self-sacrifice, and all civic virtues; it places the nation as a great organic whole, its past, its present, and its future glory and welfare above personal and selfish interests. This spirit in all of its movements and manifestations cannot be too much emphasized nor too strongly inculcated in the minds of the youth of America. It is also a matter of fine sentiment with us, that this building adjoins the new site of the University, where, within a few years, we hope to be permanently settled in new buildings, continuing the work of higher education. It is fitting, therefore, that under the roof and inspiration of this beautiful Memorial Continental Hall we should hold our eighty-fourth Commencement.

John Stuart Mill said, "Whatever helps to shape the human being—to make the individual what he is, or hinder him from being what he is not—is part of his education." The form of government under which we live; the laws by which we are governed; the modes of social life by which we are environed; the industrial, and the fine arts; even physical facts not dependent upon human will, as climate, soil, and local position, are determining factors in the formation of character and in the development of conduct. We may congratulate ourselves, therefore, that in environment we are supremely fortunate, and in many subjects of study hold a superior position.

* Extracts from an address delivered by President Needham at the Commencement of the Department of Arts and Sciences, May 31, 1905.

We are entering upon a new era of our institutional life. The past, covering a period of over three-quarters of a century, has been honorable and is worthy of the respect and veneration of men; we have agreed to enter upon a new and a larger life; to make the institution a University in the broadest and best sense, and have reorganized upon a foundation, broad enough for all to stand upon who are interested in higher education at the National Capital. With a supreme purpose to make the University worthy of support,—the equal of the best institutions in our country, we turn our faces to-day, with courage and hope, toward the future.

THE UNIVERSITY.

Liberal Culture.—There is a manifest difference between the American conception of a university and that which has prevailed and perhaps is still held in other countries. Speaking in reference to the Scottish universities, Mill said, "It is not a place of professional education. Universities are not intended to teach the knowledge required to fit men for some special mode of gaining their livelihood. Their object is not to make skillful lawyers, or physicians, or engineers, but capable and cultivated human beings." If we go back to the earliest university, we shall find it at Salerno, closed, it is true, in 1817, but extending back from that period nearly a thousand years. It was strictly a medical school, or at least that was the principal subject taught. Two other ancient models are those of Bologna and Paris; the former making law, and the latter theology its chief concern. The University of Paris, from its beginning, had four faculties, theology, Canon law, medicine, and arts, and it is interesting to note that arts was regarded as preliminary to the others. Three years of study were required for the degree of Master of Arts, and five years more for the first degree in theology. Following these there developed in time the great universities of Oxford and Cambridge in England emphasizing liberal culture and the learned professions, and the renowned universities of Germany, with the four faculties of philosophy, theology, law, and medicine. While the subjects of law and medicine are taught in these institutions, it is not purely technical work intended to fit men for the practice of a profession.

It is interesting and important to observe that with the passing years the general principles which underlie all higher education have not materially changed. The broad culture which is represented in the work of the old institutions is still regarded as the beginning and true foundation of all higher education, and necessary to prepare men for the higher walks and occupations of life. Primarily, a university training stands for the highest and broadest culture. The ability to understand and appreciate the best that has been said and done; to awaken the consciousness of the higher needs of humanity; to inspire a longing for that which is best in conduct and life,—this should ever be the very genius of a university.

Culture does not mean a thorough knowledge of every subject; it is rather, a general knowledge of many subjects, and their proper relation to each other. It develops the capacity to comprehend and the disposition to approve that which is excellent in all human life. To be cultured, a man must know something of many arts and sciences,—the history and philosophy of human life, and with it all must have acquired the perception that is possessed by a quickened and disciplined mind, which enables him to discover the best in art, in literature, in religious thought, and in human conduct.

By a general knowledge I do not mean a superficial knowledge. Archbishop Whately wisely discriminates as follows: "To have a general knowledge of a subject is to know only its leading truths, but to know these not superficially but thoroughly, so as to have a true conception of the subject in its great features; leaving the minor details to those who require them for the purposes of their pursuit." The university must therefore give this general culture, and that training of the intellectual faculties necessary to make "capable and cultivated human beings" and lay a broad foundation for specialization.

We need not consider here the relative value of the study of ancient languages and the modern sciences, or whether in the broader scheme of education preparatory to specialization, it should be literary or scientific. The value of these two lines of education are too well understood in the present day to be depreciated, and I think among all educators it is considered that a knowledge of classical languages and literature, and of sciences as well, is essential to the well-educated man. We are not obliged, therefore, to ask ourselves whether it is more important to know the languages or the sciences. "Short as life is, and shorter still as we make it by the time we waste on things which are neither business, meditation, nor pleasure, we are not so badly off that our scholars need be ignorant of the laws and properties of the world they live in, or our scientific men destitute of poetic feeling and artistic cultivation."

Specialization.—The second object of the university is to give a special and deeper knowledge of particular subjects. This is for graduate students—those who have secured the wider knowledge and mental training, and now seek, in a narrower field, to go more into the details of an art or a science. In these modern days when industrialism and commercialism largely dominate individual and national life, the acquirement of a special fitness for a special service is essential to the highest success. And here let me call attention to the technical training in law and medicine and engineering now a part, and rightly so, of the work of every American university. The method of teaching and study in the best professional schools has entirely changed. Subjects are studied historically and comparatively; the phenomena, life, and laws are investigated, and the principles lying behind them, creating and controlling them are sought out and mastered. This work is in the highest sense graduate work. It requires a trained and disciplined mind. In America this graduate work includes all arts and sciences: those pertaining to physical nature, to physical well-being, to political organizations, to systems of jurisprudence and law, to medicine, morals, and religion. And so it has come to be that the university in America includes the broad, systematic culture of the English, and the highly specialized education of the German universities.

Research.—There is still another activity which represents university life, and that is the work of discovering and developing knowledge. It is the last stage in university education. It is the philosophical study of the methods of the sciences. It is the exercise of "The modes in which the human intellect proceeds from the known to the unknown." Here the student discovers the real facts of the world; the things, and the laws of things; and from these arrives at new facts, laws, and conclusions. Doubtless this is the crown and the consummation of a liberal university education. The work, while guided by a master, is largely the personal work of the student. Gibbon said, "The greatest teacher is he who teaches others to teach themselves," one who has the power to awaken the consciousness of the higher needs of humanity; to inspire a longing for the best, the excellent, and to impel self-activity on the part of the student. This is the very genius of a true teacher and should be the highest aim of the university.

SPECIAL DEPARTMENTS.

Political Science.—Let us notice now some subjects which should receive special attention in this University because of its environment. Graduate work in politics and economics is of the most vital importance, and can be studied with peculiar advantage in Washington. Politics cannot be learned from a text-book or the instructions of a master. One must be to a considerable extent his own teacher; he must explore and observe political activities for himself, and form an independent judgment. Scientific politics do not consist in having a set of conclusions ready made, to be applied everywhere indiscriminately, excepting only "machine politics." It does consist in setting the mind to work in a scientific spirit to discover in each instance the truth applicable to a given case. University education upon this subject is not entitled to recommend any set of opinions. It can only supply the student with materials for his own mind to act upon, and helps in the use of these materials. True, it can make him acquainted with the best speculation upon the subject, taken from different points of view and having regard for individual interests. While each theory may embody some considerations relevant and necessary to a proper generalization, each will be found incomplete in itself. To us in America, the important and growing need is for a more perfect understanding and knowledge of the functions and powers of the national government.

If we review the history of the world during the last century we shall find one great tendency, one principle steadily growing, about which all other facts are marshalled and subordinated, and that is Nationalism. The smaller state idea of the Middle Ages has been gradually fading away before the rise of the thought, and the necessity, of larger and more powerful aggregations of people. The permanent influence and fame of statesmen depend on their power to understand, and to aid in the proper evolution of small and second-rate powers into strong national states. No ruler or statesman has had the genius to withstand the trend of this development, nor stay its progress.

Another important tendency in world politics is growing demand for written constitutions. Constitutional government is fast becoming the world's type, and every race, as it emerges from ignorance and superstition, will naturally and with tremendous tendency, seek a constitutional state. It is a remarkable fact that the great movement for the centralization of executive power should find its counterbalance in the growth and development of that other and broader principle, a constitutional government. The world's best public opinion favors these ideas, and higher education must help to solve and elucidate the problems that attend the growth of these two great principles.

International Law and Diplomacy.—Another important tendency in world politics is the demand that the seas, which must forever be open highways for the nations, and even war itself shall be governed by fixed laws, and that international differences be settled by tribunals of peace. One does not have to be very widely read to understand that in these days there is a tremendous world-public-opinion which is brought to bear quickly and with tremendous force, in favor of the development of international law and strict observance of this law by all nations. We may also believe that the time has passed, certainly is passing, when any nation will be permitted to gain territory by stealth, or even by wars prosecuted for the sole purpose of acquiring territory. The nations are passing through the period of development that marked the growth of private law over individual conduct and property. Each individual must now recognize the sacredness of the personal and property rights of every other citizen in a civilized state; no property can be taken by one person from another without agreement and compensation. So, in the wider field—the world—the nation that goes forth to acquire territory by any other method than that of peaceful diplomacy, will have to meet the opposition and scorn of the best and most enlightened public opinion of the world. International differences will become largely, if not wholly, matters of pecuniary liability, and these can be settled with honor by the Hague Tribunal. Not much longer will the fine irony of Mrs. Browning be true:

“The battle hurtles on the plains,
Earth feels new scythes upon her;
We reap our brothers for the wains,
And call the harvest—honor.”

Economics:—Again, the production, distribution, and consumption of things have become a study of vast proportions and importance for graduate students. Topics within the range of the subject of economics have increased, and in their relations with each other are complex and difficult of solution. There are giants in the land; tremendous forces are at work, and there is unrest and anxiety among the people concerning the great questions of capital and labor, and inequality in the use of public utilities. We are not dissatisfied with the amount of wealth, but solicitous about its distribution. Air is a necessity, and no one fears its existence until it is gathered up into storm centers. It is the hurricane and cyclone that create fear and cause anxiety. So wealth is desirable and contributes to the well-being and advancement of every community and nation; but when it is too much centralized, and the control of vast sums is centered in a few men, fear takes possession of us because we know that the effects produced by such forces are often cruel and destructive.

Laborers and employees of every kind are organizing into societies and unions for the betterment of their conditions. These organizations, wise in their fundamental ideas, are often imperfectly organized and unwisely led, creating disturbances of the public peace and order.

Public utilities have been improperly used as instrumentalities and agencies for building up private fortunes at public expense and to the detriment, and in some cases the ruin of individual capital and communities.

We have entered upon an era of wide-spread organization. We must accept the new conditions, and the educated economist and the publicist must study the working of these great forces and seek out reasonable remedies for existing evils. Casting our eyes into the universe of God, we see tremendous forces at work accomplishing the purposes of a divine will; they work harmoniously because of the wisdom and force of laws adapted to their well-being. There is no crossing of the lines; no defeating of ends; law is everywhere prevalent. Man will have climbed far up the heights when, emulating the divine wisdom, he can utilize for his own purposes great forces of capital and labor, provide wise laws for their control, and make these laws prevalent. Here, then, where statistics are gathered; where policies of administration are determined; where corrective legislation is formulated and judicially construed, there should be a university with a strong, efficient faculty in economics, training graduate men to know and reason moderately and wisely in the interest of the whole people and the steady development of the wealth and power of the nation.

A College of Fine Arts:—In this beautiful city, with its parks, its works of art, and its libraries, there should be higher education in the Fine Arts: Architecture, Painting, Sculpture, and Music. These are important subjects in the advancement of the race. No nation becomes truly great without them. Civilization does not come by bread alone but by the uprising in the human heart of many sentiments, the movement of spiritual impulses. True life is a union of the spiritual and the material. Fine character and manners are made "like some old temples of the far-off times by the mingling of rude timbers and beaten gold; of rocks and precious stones; of solid walls and crimson curtains; of the courts of the gentiles and holy places." Go through the history of Egypt, and Greece, and Palestine, and Rome, and Italy; travel through modern Europe and America and everywhere you find in greater or less development the forms and structures of peoples who loved grace in forms, the beautiful coloring in decoration, and harmonies in sound. This sentiment is not only universal, it is powerful in developing character and largely determines the civilization of races. The ruins of old states may be silent about some of the particular merits of those who built and occupied temple, and palace, and forum, and villa, but the ruins assure us that those who lived there possessed those tastes which are now the foundation of art and through art of an abiding joy.

The history of civilization, if widely and deeply written, would not only be a record of war, and politics and religion, of commerce and industry, but it would also give the development and history of a sentiment which "in the child reaches after a rose and in manhood stretches out its hands for marble, and purple and jewels, and harp, and song." Æsthetics is studied as a science. It treats of the beautiful, helps to form correct theories of taste, and should receive careful attention in the higher scheme of education. Imagination is the picture gallery of the soul. From these pictures life takes on its outward appearances. To be worth living, one's life must be constructive and its structures should be noble and beautiful. A study of the fine arts cultivates the imagination, refines the taste, enriches the soul, and "justifies the pain of living." If science and reason are laying better foundations of thought, let a cultivated imagination hasten to build upon these better stones a better temple and make it tremble with a holier music, for only when reason and imagination act together in harmony shall we find the truest answers to the problems of life and the surest advancement of our race. If we would reach, then, the highest ideal for our University, accomplish most for our beloved city, let instruction in literature and philosophy and the sciences go hand in hand with the fine arts, and make education broad and deep and ennobling.

This, then, in outline, is the University we seek to upbuild in Washington. To the accomplishment of this task, officers, trustees, and faculties, and students, and alumni, and friends everywhere, must labor and sacrifice.

"To live for common ends is to be common.
The highest faith still makes the highest man;
For we grow like the things our souls believe,
And rise or sink as we aim high or low."

WHAT THE UNIVERSITY IS DOING.

THE UNIVERSITY:—The session of 1904-'05 has been highly prosperous. The total enrollment of students was 1456, representing 49 States and Territories, Hawaii, Porto Rico, and the Philippines, and of foreign countries Bohemia, Chile, China, Costa Rica, Germany, Japan, Korea, Peru, and Venezuela. The total enrollment for 1903-'04 was 1408. The members of the Faculties and Teaching Staff now number 170. On September 1 the change of name from Columbian University to The George Washington University went into effect. On February 3, 1905, an Act of Congress was passed providing for the incorporation of Colleges under the University charter, and the Trustees have authorized under this Act the organization of the Columbian College and the Washington College of Engineering. The University Library has undergone marked development, owing to special donations and the establishment of a permanent library fund. Several thousand volumes have been added by donation and purchase. The Law Library is the best working library for its purposes in the District outside the great Government collections. The Medical Library has acquired over 1600 carefully selected volumes. The Arts and Science Library has been thoroughly reorganized and its collections enriched by the purchase and donation of reference books. By the generosity of Mr. Charles Heinrich twenty-five hundred dollars has been contributed for the establishment of a library of Germanic literature. Scientific publication has been fostered by the Board of University Publications, as is evinced by the University Bibliography appearing September 1, 1904, containing the titles of the important publications of forty-nine members of the Faculties, fifteen Doctors of Philosophy, and two Doctors of Civil Law, and the two Scientific Numbers of the UNIVERSITY BULLETIN issued October and December, 1904, containing papers by members of the Faculties and graduates, several of which were read at the International Congress of Arts and Sciences in St. Louis. The Board of Award appointed to adjudge and report on the relative merits of the designs submitted by architects, in the competitive contest, for the group of University buildings in Van Ness Park, the new site of the University, accepted on May 13 the plans submitted by the firm of George B. Post and Son of New York. Honorable mention was made of the design submitted by the firm of Hale and Morse. The jury was composed of Mr. Charles F. McKim, Mr. Bernard R. Green, and Prof. Percy Ash. The designs show ground plans for the disposition and arrangement of buildings in Van Ness Park, and on the adjoining land to the north and west, for the purchase of which the University holds an option, as well as elevations of the several buildings contemplated for erection in the park. The accepted plans provide for a dignified group in classical style to accord with the architecture of the White House and other public buildings. The several members of the group are well related and surround a large internal campus. The Memorial Hall, a domed structure, with a portico of Corinthian columns, will be situated on the corner of 17th and B Streets on an axis drawn from the center of Van Ness Park to the Washington Monument, and as a memorial to George Washington will appropriately face the monument and form the head of the entire group of college and university buildings.

DEPARTMENT OF ARTS AND SCIENCES:—(a) Columbian College: The work of the College has been conducted in 21 university subjects, by a corps of instruction numbering 45. The instruction has been distributed in 124 courses of study, aggregating 272 periods of recitation, lecture, and laboratory work each week. The registration of students this year is 443, an increase of 54 over last year; in addition there have been 64 teachers from the public schools of the District of Columbia enrolled in teacher's courses in the College, making a total of 507 under instruction. The establishment of the Department of Economics in charge of Professor C. W. A. Veditz, Ph.D., is of great importance to the College. New instructors have been appointed in Latin and Greek, in Mathematics, in English, in History, in Architecture, and in Romance Languages, making it possible to divide large classes, to offer new courses, and to provide some relief where burdens of instruction had grown too heavy. New books have been purchased for the library and under the careful administration of the Library Committee and a very efficient librarian the new library fee has been made to contribute at once to the strengthening of the educational work. This library fee as an assurance of constant accessions to the library is an important encouragement. In addition, the generous gift of Mr. Heurich of $2500 for establishing the nucleus of a Germanic library is all that is needed to place our library in a condition of entire respectability. The needs of the laboratories are pressing. The crowded condition of University Hall was relieved in the winter by the renting of the house at 813 Fifteenth Street for the department of Architecture and for Zoölogy. This is only partial relief. Already the department of Architecture needs more room and other arrangements should be made for the courses in Zoölogy. The department of Physics is so cramped for space that the efficiency of the work is seriously limited. A room is needed for Botany, and another laboratory is needed by the department of Chemistry. The subjects most in need of revision and organization at the present time are the engineering subjects. The increase of registration in these subjects is phenomenal. The constantly increasing enrollment constitutes an opportunity not to be ignored, and it is conceded that the common interests of the engineering subjects constitute them a natural group which should be organized in a distinct department of engineering.

(b) Division of Graduate Studies.:—The number of students admitted to candidature to higher degrees was 74, a gain of 21 over the records of 1903. Of these, one received the Ph. D. degree at the midwinter convocation, while 15 received their degree at the late commencement. The Doctorate Disputation was held on the morning of May 22, at ten o'clock. There were three candidates for the Doctor's degree, Mr. Ray Smith Bassler, A.B., M.S., of Ohio; Mr. Hiram Colver McNeil, B.S., M.S., of Ohio; and Mr. Henry Alfred Pressey, B.S., of Maine. These candidates were recommended for the degrees by the boards of specialists. During the year the faculty has been strengthened by the addition of C. W. A. Veditz, Ph.D., as Professor of Economics; George Lansing Raymond, L.H.D., as Professor of Æsthetics; Williston S. Hough, Ph.D., as Professor of Philosophy; Edgar Buckingham, Ph.D., as Lecturer on Thermodynamics; Frederick Fowle, Jr., S.B., as Lecturer on Astrophysics. Mr. Fowle is associated with Dr. S. P.

Langley, and through him our advanced students have access to the unique methods of research carried on under Dr. Langley's direction at the Astrophysical Observatory.

DEPARTMENT OF MEDICINE:—(a) Faculty of Medicine.—The total registration was 298 students, distributed as follows: first-year class, 72; second-year class, 81; third-year class, 71; fourth-year class, 74. The examinations for graduation have been completed with the result that out of 70 candidates appearing, 59 passed successfully. With three candidates who passed at the fall examination the total number of graduates was 62, the largest number in the history of the Department. Several important improvements and additions have been made. A reference library intended for students' use has been established. The gift by Mrs. Lincoln of the library of her husband, the late Dr. N. S. Lincoln, for years a distinguished professor in this Department, formed an excellent nucleus. Other gifts have been received from various sources and another large one has just been made by an alumnus, Dr. Isaac W. Brewer, U. S. A. One hundred and eighty volumes of the most approved recent medical works have been added by purchase. Additional tables have been added to the Anatomical Laboratory and the Histological Laboratory. The cold-storage room, used for the preservation of anatomical material has just been remodeled and is in excellent condition, and an average temperature of 20 degrees is maintained with ease. A number of minor but important and necessary additions were made to the equipment of the Pathological, Bacteriological, and Histological Laboratories, and a good deal of new apparatus was added to the Physiological Laboratory.

A change has been made in the order in which the subjects in the curriculum are taught. This change was made with a view to obtain a more logical connection between the constituent parts of the medical course. The experience of the year closing appears to bear out the wisdom of the change. Beginning with next session as has already been set forth in the catalogue, a still further development of this change will go into effect. Briefly stated, the student will devote three years to lecture, recitation, and laboratory work; his fourth year he will spend practically in clinical work in the hospitals and out-patient dispensary services, studying and familiarizing himself with disease as presented in actuality. At the end of his fourth year, he will stand a final examination in all the subjects covered in the four years' course. The minimum standard for entrance is now that equivalent to graduation from a four-year high school. There is a growing tendency to increase this standard and to require a baccalaureate degree. During the session now closing, a larger amount of clinical instruction has been given in our own Hospital than heretofore. In our own Hospital there were given 20 medical amphitheater clinics by the Professor of Practice and 18 surgical amphitheater clinics by the Professors of Clinical Surgery (including Gynecology and Ophthalmology). One hundred and twenty ward-classes in Clinical Medicine and 25 ward-classes in Clinical Surgery were conducted. Some idea of the amount of work represented and of the instruction given may be formed from the fact that these classes represent an average of 30 students for one hour, or a total attendance for the session of 3600 students for one hour.

(b) Faculty of Dentistry.:—During the past year there were enrolled a total of 68 students, 19 in the first-year class, 15 in the second-year class, and 34 in the third-year class. The work of the Dental Infirmary has been more extensive than ever. Improvements have been made in the regular lecture courses, additional lecturers have been appointed and the equipment is being enlarged in the Infirmary and Technic plants.

DEPARTMENTS OF LAW, AND JURISPRUDENCE AND DIPLOMACY :—The attendance in the Department of Law was 466, distributed as follows: first-year class, 160; second-year, 118; third-year, 111; special, etc., 77. The total registration in the Department of Jurisprudence and Diplomacy was 52, of whom 26 were candidates for the LL. M. degree, 10 for the M. Dip. degree, 4 for the D. C. L. degree, with 12 special students. There are now five instructors devoting their whole time to the development of the subjects entrusted to them and beginning in October, 1905, instruction will be given in the morning as well as in the afternoon hours to the students of all three classes in the undergraduate course. A new adjustment of the work in these departments has been made so that, beginning with October, 1905, the Department of Law and Jurisprudence will conduct the undergraduate courses in the broader field of general law, and the new Departments of Politics and Diplomacy will conduct graduate courses in the realm of political science, special attention being given to diplomacy. The degree given in graduate courses in the Departments of Law and Jurisprudence are Master of Laws, Master of Patent Law, and Doctor of Jurisprudence. Judge Charles H. Duell, of the Court of Appeals, has been appointed Lecturer on substantive Patent Law.

DEPARTMENT OF POLITICS AND DIPLOMACY:—This department now constitutes a distinct branch of the graduate professional work of the University. As the organization is not yet completed, a full statement of the faculty and its courses of study will be given in a special announcement. The name is meant to indicate in a broad way the following general divisions of study: (1) The structures and administration of the state or body politic; (2) Economics, the production, movement, distribution, and consumption of things and services; (3) International Law and Diplomacy—the obligations and relations of states to one another. The requirement for admission is the completion of a liberal undergraduate course of study such as is deemed essential by colleges of good standing for the attainment of the baccalaureate degree. The degrees conferred are Master of Diplomacy and Doctor of Philosophy. Since the publication of the University Catalogue the following additional instructors have been appointed: H. Parker Willis, Ph. D., now head of the Department of Economics in Washington and Lee University, Professor of Finance; Williston S. Hough, Ph. D., recently of the University of Minnesota, Professor of the Philosophy of Government; and James C. Monaghan, A. M., Lecturer on the Consular Service.

STUDENT LIFE:—Student activities have been noteworthy during the past session. The Association of Class Presidents has done effective work in concentrating student energies toward the consummation of desirable ends. This has been seen especially in their organization of the Editorial Board of the University Annual, "The Mall." The students' weekly publication, "The Hatchet," is now well established. Intercollegiate debating is managed by a central body called the "Intercollegiate Debating Council." composed of one representative of each of the four debating societies, with two members of the faculty and two alumni. There have been three debates during the year: The George Washington-Virginia Debate, held at the University of Virginia, February 25, won by Virginia; the George Washington-Washington and Lee Debate, held in Washington, March 3, won by our University; and the George Washington-Georgetown Debate, held in Georgetown University, May 27, won by our University, which has been victor in two out of three debates in the series arranged three years ago. The Classical Club has held public sessions with addresses by Professor Thomas Day Seymour of Yale, Professor W. N. Bates of the University of Pennsylvania, and Professor E. M. Pease formerly of Leland Stanford University. In regard to Athletics, the story of the season of 1904, in football, evinces great progress, when compared with that of 1903. In the former year seven games were played, and only two were won; in the latter eight games were played and only two were lost. The baseball record, while not gratifying in the number of games won, yet shows good results in the improved work of the team, and the steadily increasing interest on the part of the student body. Other evidences of real university life are to be found in the success of such organizations as the Glee Club, the Dramatic Club, the Canoe Club, and the Tennis and Chess Clubs.

THE EIGHTY-FOURTH ANNUAL COMMENCEMENT:—On Sunday afternoon, May 28, at 4 p. m., the University Procession, with trustees, faculty, and students in academic dress, formed at University Hall, and marched to Memorial Continental Hall, where all the commencement exercises were held. Here the baccalaureate sermon was preached by the Rev. Wallace Radcliffe, D.D., LL.D., pastor of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, from the text "I was not disobedient unto the heavenly vision" (Acts, 26, 19). On Monday evening, May 29, occurred the commencement of the Departments of Medicine and Dentistry. The address was by Professor Charles E. Munroe, Ph.D., on "The Lord Protector's Motto: Qui cessat esse melior, cessat esse bonus." The degree of M.D. was conferred on 61 candidates; of D.D.S. on 23 candidates. On Tuesday evening, May 30, occurred the commencement of the Departments of Law, and Jurisprudence and Diplomacy. The address was by Hon. Henry M. Hoyt, Solicitor-General of the United States, on "The Law and the Community." The degree of LL. B. was conferred on 86 candidates; of M. P. L. on 16; of LL. M. on 18; of M. Dip. on 4; and of D. C. L. on 3 candidates. On the evening of May 31, at 10.30 o'clock, occurred the commencement of the Department of Arts and Sciences. The address was by President Needham on "The University." The number of candidates who received degrees was: B. A., 7; B. S., 14; C. E., 1; M. E., 3; M. S., 5; M. A., 3; Ph. D., 3. The honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity was conferred on Rev. Charles Hastings Dodd, pastor of Eutaw Place Baptist Church, Baltimore, Md.

THE ALUMNI.

The first alumni association of the Columbian College, as the institution was then called, was formed on Commencement Day in 1847. Twenty-seven alumni met on the evening of July 14, and organized by the election of Dr. William Collins, a Bachelor of Arts of the Class of 1825, as president. The Constitution adopted at the meeting in 1848 stated the objects of the association in the following words:

"The objects of this association shall be the cultivation of friendship and union among its members, the promotion of the interests of their alma mater, and the general advancement of literature."

Membership at first was restricted to those having the degree of Bachelor of Arts, and although the college began to confer the degree of Bachelor of Philosophy in 1854, it was not until 1857 that holders of this degree were admitted to the association. The old records are interesting, and contain the names of many alumni who have been prominent in affairs of Church and State. The attendance at the meetings was never large, but considerable activity was displayed. Thus during one year plans were obtained and work done in laying out and improving the college grounds. On the other hand, it appears that it took one committee seven years to prepare a circular to be sent to the alumni urging them to join the association.

Regular meetings were held annually until 1861, and usually on Commencement Day. During the war no meetings were held, but they were resumed in 1865, and continued until 1874. Then came an interval of twelve years, until 1886, when a call was issued to alumni of the college, and in June a meeting was held at the University at which twenty-eight graduates were present. An organization was effected and officers elected at this meeting. In February, 1887, the College Alumni Association called a meeting of the graduates of all departments and schools of the University to discuss the advisability of forming a general Alumni Association, to include in its membership any person who had received a degree from the University, and on February 28 the present association was formed. At the annual meeting of the Association in April, 1904, the name of the Association was changed to correspond to the new name of the University.

During the eighteen years of the life of the present Association much work has been done, and material help has been given to the University. The Association holds a business meeting each year, arranges for a banquet or other social meeting, and at times has meetings for special purposes. For a number of years it provided the funds for periodicals for the University reading-room; it has published the memorial addresses in honor of Professor E. T. Frisbie and Judge Walter S. Cox; it has issued to alumni letters and circulars almost innumerable in aid of various University projects, and for the purpose of keeping the graduates more fully informed of the progress and development of the University. In 1891 it issued an "Historical Catalogue" of the University, which was much more elaborate and complete than any previously published.

The roll of alumni is a long one. Since the foundation of the University in 1821, there have been conferred 6378 degrees upon 5016 persons. Of these, the addresses of more than 3300 are known, and the Alumni Association keeps in touch with all of them. The list contains the names of many who have won distinction in education, in the pulpit, at the bar, in war, in statesmanship, in diplomacy, in administration. At this time, alumni in the army hold various ranks, from lieutenant to brigadier-general; in the navy, from lieutenant to admiral; in the departmental service, from clerk to cabinet officer. In the legislative branch we have representatives in the House and in the Senate of the United States; in the judicial branch, our graduates are found in the District and Circuit Courts; in the diplomatic and consular services we claim ministers, secretaries, consuls. Not alone in the service of the nation but in every state of the union, in Europe, in South America, in the Far East, in India, are found our graduates. And wherever they are, in whatever work they are engaged, they rank well among the leaders and doers.

The Association has recently established an Alumni Scholarship in the college, and contributes each year an amount sufficient to pay the tuition fees of at least one student. Nominations for this scholarship may be made by any alumnus, and the award is made by a committee appointed by the executive committee of the Association.

With the recent great developments in university activities, which promise a rapid growth in every direction, the time has seemed ripe to promote the organization of Alumni Associations in various parts of the country. An extended trip through the West was made by President Needham in the summer of 1904, in which he met large numbers of the alumni, and aroused great interest in the University. This resulted in the formation of several associations in the West. At this time there are in existence the Puget Sound Alumni Association, of Seattle; the Colorado Alumni Association, Denver; the Salt Lake City Alumni Association, and the New York Alumni Association.

Preliminary moves have been made by alumni at Boston, Chicago, and Los Angeles, and permanent organizations are probable in the near future in these and other cities.

The present activities of the alumni are concerned with Alumni Hall, for the building of which, on the new University site, $150,000 will be needed. An active and efficient committee has been formed who are working on a definite plan in soliciting subscriptions. The results thus far achieved are so encouraging that it is believed a beginning can be made on the building during the coming year. This hall is to be the social center of University life for students, faculties, and graduates. It is to contain parlors, reading rooms, dining-rooms, meeting rooms for committees and organizations, and chambers which may be rented by visiting alumni. It will be conducted largely as a club, and will meet a want long felt by resident and visiting alumni.

All alumni are to have the benefit, upon payment of either a capital sum of $100 or of annual dues, of the use of the Alumni Hall as a club-house. Non-resident alumni, visiting the city, can have lodging rooms in the building. The purpose of this plan is to bring the alumni and student body into closer relations, securing for the alumni all the privileges of a handsome club-house, for the students the valuable association with the graduates, and for the University the continued interest and support of the graduate body.

Although merely preliminary efforts in the canvass have been made, pledges to the amount of several thousand dollars have already been secured, payable in five annual instalments. This is a promising beginning and the fund ought to be very rapidly increased by subscriptions of the alumni. Success in the efforts of the President of the University to secure from various sources contributions for the University must largely depend upon the interest shown by the alumni themselves in supporting the institution from which they hold their degrees. Many may be unable to contribute any large sum, but very few cannot contribute something.

Voluntary contributions of from $25 to $1000 are therefore solicited from alumni, payable in five annual instalments. Pledges may be sent to the Secretary of the Alumni Association, Professor H. L. Hodgkins, at the University.

This building ought to be the first of the University buildings to be begun and no doubt should be entertained as to its early completion.
